Saving America by Saving the Family: A Foundation for the Next 250 Years

January 8, 2026 Over an hour read Download Report

<https://www.heritage.org/marriage-and-family/report/saving-america-saving-the-family-foundation-the-next-250-years>

The task of the authors of this Special Report is to propose ways to remove the many obstacles blocking the formation of healthy families, to make marriage and family life easier, and to restore family to the center of American life in rhetoric and in reality.

1) Introduction: Core Idea of the Report

The report argues that families—especially traditional marriage between one man and one woman—are the foundation of civilization and the American state. It places two central truths at the forefront:

1. Children have a right to the affection and protection of their biological parents.
2. The ideal environment for this is a stable household with married biological parents.

2) Analysis of the “Family Crisis”

a) Demographic Development

- Marriage and birth rates have declined sharply
- Many adults marry later or not at all.
- Cohabitation replaces traditional marriage in many cases.
- The fertility rate is below the level necessary for population stability.

b) Causes

The report attributes the crisis to two major causes:

- Social-policy incentives (e.g., certain welfare programs) that make marriage and work economically unattractive.
- Cultural changes since the 1960s (e.g., sexual revolution, individualism) that have devalued traditional family models.

3) Social Impacts

- Children without stable family conditions have, on average, poorer educational outcomes, higher poverty rates, and more social problems.
- An aging society without sufficient birth rates endangers social security systems and economic stability.

4) Fundamental Guiding Questions

The report poses the central question: What happens to a country whose citizens barely marry and have children anymore?

It emphasizes that America's future will be decided by how it deals with family formation.

5) Strategic Response: Rebuilding the Family

The authors propose that America should consciously choose the path of strengthening families again, rather than letting the trends continue unchecked. A social and political turnaround is necessary to make families attractive and supported once more.

1. Three Major Political-Strategic Core Imperatives

The report structures its recommendations around three central goals:

1. Stop policies from “punishing” family formation – e.g., reform of welfare, tax, and social programs that make marriage economically unattractive.

2. Restoration of the “American Dream” – promoting economic security, home ownership, and prospects that encourage young people to marry and have children.

3. Direct support for marriage and working families – political incentives, relief measures, and programs that stabilize traditional family structures.

2. Financial Incentives and Tax/Savings Measures

To mitigate financial barriers to marriage and child-rearing, the report proposes:

• Newborn and marriage savings accounts (e.g., NEST Accounts) – new tax-advantaged accounts for newlyweds and newborns, similar to existing “Trump Accounts.”

• Expanded tax benefits for children and married couples – higher child and marriage tax relief, especially for larger families.

• Bonus systems for larger families – additional benefits/tax advantages the more children married couples have.

♥ 3. Support for Marriage and Relationships

The report mentions several programs to promote stable partnerships and relationship quality:

- “Marriage Bootcamps” – courses offered by health and social services to strengthen marriage and conflict resolution.
- Public recognition of long-term marriages – e.g., awards/premiums for couples who spend decades together.
- Active countermeasures against online-dating culture – recommended political measures or campaigns to make trends like online dating and fleeting relationships less attractive.

● 4. Regulation of Social Factors

The report proposes measures it defines as societal influences on families:

- Restrictions for minors on social media & AI chatbots – e.g., age limits starting at 16 years for social platforms to strengthen focus on real relationships.
- Restriction of access to pornography – as a contribution to psychosexual health and relationship stability.

5. Uniform Day of Rest

One of the most widely discussed proposals is the call for a legally established, uniform day of rest (primarily Sunday) that:

- Restricts commercial activities on that day – e.g., through the restoration or expansion of “Blue Laws” regulating shop opening hours.
- Is intended to create shared time for family, recreation, faith, and community – as a “synchronous day of rest” to promote social cohesion.
- Seeks to legitimize Sunday as the common day off based on constitutional precedent (McGowan v. Maryland).

 Critics, however, see conflicts here with religious freedom and state neutrality, since non-Christian groups (e.g., Jewish or Adventist Sabbath observers) would be disadvantaged if a state-fixed day of rest is Sunday.

6. Further Political Measures (Broader Context)

Other points that appear in the public debate about the report, but often do not appear in the official core text as formal political demands, include:

- Review of all federal programs for their impact on marriage and family – for example, employment and welfare programs should be examined to see whether they “punish” or promote marriage.
- Criticism of certain medical procedures outside of marriage (e.g., IVF policy) to protect traditional family models.

⚠️ National Sunday Law – Legislative Initiative of 1888

In 1888, a bill was introduced in the U.S. Congress that aimed to nationally establish Sunday as a day of rest by law.

Introduced by: Senator Henry W. Blair (known for religiously and morally driven legislative proposals)

The law intended to: Prohibit work on Sundays, indirectly promote church attendance, and impose penalties for violations of Sunday rest.

🛡️ A.T. Jones – Defense of Religious Freedom

Adventist Alonzo T. Jones spoke against the Blair bill before the U.S. Senate Committee on December 13, 1888.

His arguments: Forcing Sunday observance is religious persecution. The Constitution (First Amendment) guarantees the separation of church and state. Such laws lead back to the dark centuries of religious intolerance.

- ◆ His speech was later published under the title, "The National Sunday Law" and remains a classic text in defense of freedom of conscience.

🌱 Conclusion:

Blue Laws, particularly the Sunday law initiative of 1888, were a direct attempt to enforce religious practices through legislation. A.T. Jones powerfully and publicly opposed this attempt—thereby preserving a crucial piece of freedom of conscience in American history.

Proposal for a uniform day of rest in the USA: Statement by the Adventist church leadership

The North American Seventh-day Adventist Church leadership has published a critical statement on the Heritage Foundation's proposal to legally establish a uniform day of rest in the United States

(lifePR) (Columbia/Maryland (USA), 28.01.2026) The conservative US think tank Heritage Foundation published a document on January 8 entitled „Saving America by Saving the Family“ (Saving America by Saving the Family) in which it proposed that Sunday be legally established as a „uniform day of rest“. States and local governments are urged to limit commercial activities on Sundays to encourage religious activity and ministry and to provide American workers with a regular day of rest. There is no legally established rest day in the USA, although so-called „Blue Laws“ restrict shop opening hours or working hours on Sundays in some US states.

Critical statement of the Adventist church leadership

While the Heritage Foundation's proposal appears to be a family-friendly and community-promoting measure, Adventist church leaders have pointed out that the recommendation to protect Sunday through government action is similar to the Sunday laws the church has long opposed. On January 18, the North American Seventh-day Adventist Church leadership (including the United States and Canada) issued a critical statement on the Heritage Foundation's proposal. It states: „Seventh-

Sunday Rest Proposal Raises Troubling Religious Liberty Concerns

A response by the North American Division of Seventh-day Adventists

January 18, 2026

Columbia, Md.

<https://www.nadadventist.org/news/sunday-rest-proposal-raises-troubling-religious-liberty-concerns/>

A proposal by a Washington, D.C.-based advocacy organization to legally recognize and enforce a “uniform day of rest” represents a disturbing disregard for the religious freedom of all Americans. The Heritage Foundation’s document, “Saving America by Saving the Family,” calls for states and local municipalities to restrict commercial activities on Sunday as a way to promote spiritual engagement and provide a regular day of relaxation for American workers.

Seventh-day Adventists believe all people have been created in God’s image with the freedom to worship according to the dictates of their conscience. For more than 160 years, the Church has forcefully advocated against any form of Sunday law. Adventists have always understood these laws — whether at a local, state, or federal level — as attempts to compel conscience, even when they are defended on pretextual secular grounds such as promoting the health of communities and families.

This new proposal for a “uniform day of rest” is irreconcilable with America’s rich heritage of protecting the religious freedom of all its citizens, regardless of their religious beliefs or nonbelief. It represents a dangerous desire to use state power to advance religious objectives. Restricting commercial activities on Sunday also raises serious practical concerns for members of those faiths that do not worship on Sunday, including Seventh-day Adventists and Orthodox Jews.

Sunday laws run counter to the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, which preserves religious freedom for all Americans by requiring the government to remain neutral between different religious faiths. Our church leaders in the North American Division and the union conferences will continue to uphold the banner of truth and religious liberty, firmly opposing this proposal and any similar measures.

First, I would like you to note that she “sent out the testimonies regarding the efforts of the enemy”. Many Adventists argue that it is not our job to watch what the enemy does. But I agree with Ellen G. White that it is indeed also (!) necessary to “predict icebergs” in the fairway. And the largest iceberg that awaits us is probably the National Sunday Law in the U.S., because we know that our time of preparation must be completed beforehand. Wouldn't it be good for us to quickly “spy out this iceberg” a bit earlier to make up for lost time?

THE SEARCH FOR UNITY: THROUGHOUT THE YEAR

The traditional period in the northern hemisphere for the Week of Prayer for Christian Unity is 18-25 January. Those dates were proposed in 1908 by Paul Wattson to cover the days between the feasts of St Peter and St Paul, and therefore have a symbolic significance. In the southern hemisphere where January is a vacation time churches often find other days to celebrate the Week of Prayer, for example around Pentecost (suggested by the Faith and Order movement in 1926), which is also a symbolic date for the unity of the Church.

SOLEMNITY OF THE CONVERSION OF SAINT PAUL

CELEBRATION OF SECOND VESPERS

59th WEEK OF PRAYER FOR CHRISTIAN UNITY

HOMILY OF POPE LEO XIV

Basilica of St Paul outside the Walls

Sunday, 25 January 2026

Dear brothers and sisters,

In one of the Scripture passages we have just heard, the Apostle Paul refers to himself as “the least of the apostles” (1 Cor 15:9). He considers himself unworthy of this title because he had once been a persecutor of the Church of God. Nevertheless, he is not a prisoner of that past, but rather a “prisoner in the Lord” (Eph 4:1). It was indeed by the grace of God that Paul came to know the risen Lord Jesus, who revealed himself first to Peter, then to the other Apostles and to hundreds of other followers of the Way, and finally also to him, a persecutor (cf. 1 Cor 15:3-8). His encounter with the risen Lord brought about the conversion that we commemorate today.

The depth of this conversion is reflected in the change of his name from Saul to Paul. By the grace of God, the one who once persecuted Jesus has been completely transformed into his witness. The one who once fiercely opposed the name of Christ now preaches his love with burning zeal, as vividly expressed in the hymn we sang at the beginning of this celebration (cfr. Excelsam Pauli Gloriam, v. 2). As we gather before the mortal remains of the Apostle to the Gentiles, we are reminded that his mission is also the mission of all Christians today: to proclaim Christ and to invite everyone to place their trust in him. Every authentic encounter with the Lord is, in fact, a transformative moment that grants a new vision and a new direction for the task of building up the Body of Christ (cf. Eph 4:12).

Why 2026 Will Be the Year of Leo

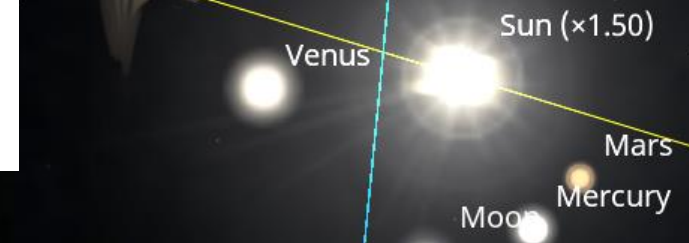

AI, electoral politics, and spiritual renewal in America are other themes set to shape the year ahead.

Jonathan Liedl | Vatican | December 31, 2025

While 2025 will forever be remembered as the year the Catholic Church got its first American pope, 2026 is likely to be the year that he begins to fully make his mark.

Pope Leo XIV's impact on the Church and the world is expected to come into fuller focus in 2026, his first full calendar year as pontiff. The Chicago-born successor to Pope Francis will set his own course on everything from Vatican governance and liturgy to papal travel and major teaching documents.

But in 2026, it will be all Leo, all the time, as there will be no more inherited events or appointments on the agenda.

EXTRAORDINARY CONSISTORY

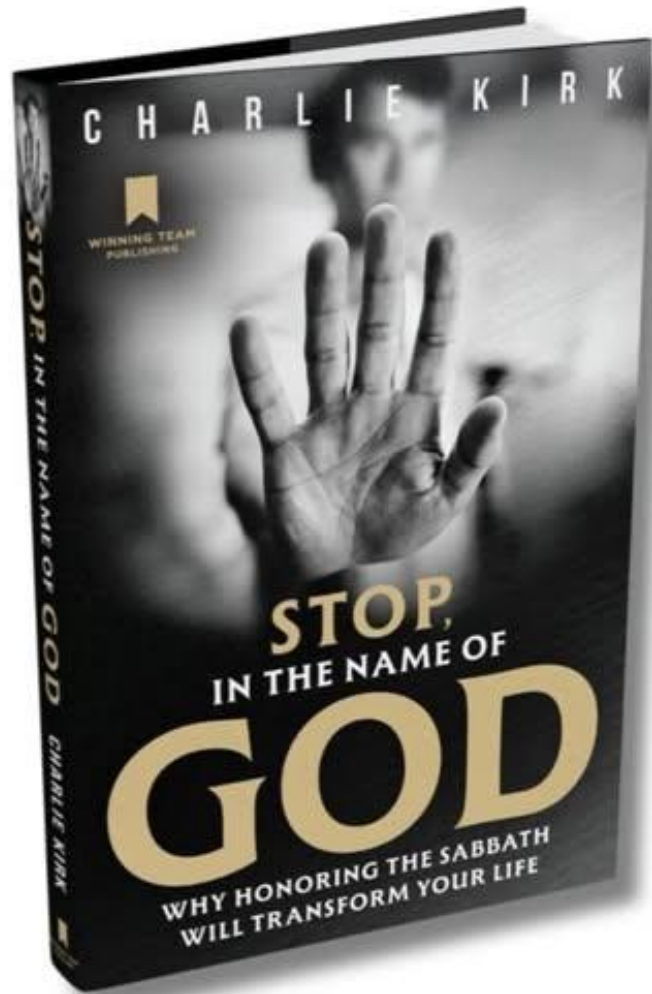

Synod Hall
Wednesday, 7 January 2026

In the coming days, we will have the opportunity to engage in a communal reflection on four themes: Evangelii Gaudium, that is, the mission of the Church in today's world; Praedicate Evangelium, namely the service of the Holy See, especially to the particular Churches; the Synod and synodality as both an instrument and a style of cooperation; and the liturgy, the source and summit of the Christian life. Due to time constraints, and in order to encourage a genuinely in-depth analysis, only two of them will be discussed specifically.

Sun (×1.50)

Tomorrow, we will discuss the two chosen themes, with the following question as a guide:

Looking at the path of the next one or two years, what considerations and priorities could guide the action of the Holy Father and of the Curia regarding each theme?

One month before a monster took him away from us, the Great Charlie Kirk finished his final Book, "Stop, in the Name of God: Why Honoring the Sabbath Will Transform Your Life." As Charlie often said, "If I'm to be known for anything, I want to be known for being courageous for my Faith." Charlie cared deeply about God and Country and, in this powerful book, his Wisdom, Courage, and Conviction inspires us all to turn to God for guidance against the Evil in this World, which we too can overcome, SO HELP US GOD. Kirk says, "My purpose in writing is to urge the world—people of all faiths and backgrounds—to stop for one day." And although he personally honored Sabbath from sunset Friday to sunset Saturday, he admits, "I don't think the specific day—Saturday or Sunday—is of primary importance," and "I do not believe disobeying Sabbath in a legal sense is a sin for Christians under grace."

He continues, "So whether you keep the Sabbath on Saturday, honor the Lord's Day on Sunday, or practice daily rhythms of intentional rest and worship—do not abandon the principle." Kirk confessed to sometimes working on Sabbath, saying, "If I have to work on Saturday, I take Sunday as my Sabbath." Kirk's advice is to "Think of Sabbath not as an all-or-nothing practice, but as a rhythm of renewal you fiercely prioritize."

A National Cultural Rhythm

In the conclusion of his book, Kirk says, "Imagine if America began to honor the Sabbath again—not merely as a personal spiritual practice, but as a national cultural rhythm. Picture Saturday (or Sundays) once again becoming a time of collective pause. ... Our frayed, fractured society would begin to knit itself back together, not through government programs or corporate initiatives, but through God's design: one day in seven set apart for healing, remembering, and being human again. ... The Sabbath would become not just a private act of worship, but a public act of restoration."

What we know about Trump's 'framework of future deal' over Greenland

22 January 2026

What has been said about the framework deal?

President Trump made the announcement after talks at the World Economic Forum in Davos, Switzerland.

"Based upon a very productive meeting that I have had with the Secretary General of NATO, Mark Rutte, we have formed the framework of a future deal with respect to Greenland," he said on his Truth Social media platform.

He did not give details, but said talks would continue to reach the agreement.

Rutte said he had not discussed the key issue of Danish sovereignty over Greenland in his meeting with Trump.

Donald J. Trump
@realDonaldTrump

Based upon a very productive meeting that I have had with the Secretary General of NATO, Mark Rutte, we have formed the framework of a future deal with respect to Greenland and, in fact, the entire Arctic Region. This solution, if consummated, will be a great one for the United States of America, and all NATO Nations. Based upon this understanding, I will not be imposing the Tariffs that were scheduled to go into effect on February 1st. Additional discussions are being held concerning The Golden Dome as it pertains to Greenland. Further information will be made available as discussions progress. Vice President JD Vance, Secretary of State Marco Rubio, Special Envoy Steve Witkoff, and various others, as needed, will be responsible for the negotiations — They will report directly to me. Thank you for your attention to this matter!

The chief of Spain's diplomacy said that the deal cut bilaterally between Rutte and the United States President Donald Trump is a bilateral arrangement, "not NATO, (...) it is the Secretary General of NATO talking to one of the allies."

Details of the arrangement are yet to emerge. "The only thing I know is the announcement that was made yesterday," Albares said.

"I talked to the ministers of foreign affairs of all those allied countries, and they have the same information as I, just the announcement. And I'm sure that whatever has been discussed will be brought to the Council of NATO."

In Europe, there are currently twelve sovereign monarchies – that is, twelve states in which the head of state is a monarch (king, grand duke, prince, or similar title). These include well-known kingdoms such as Denmark or Spain, but also smaller monarchies such as Monaco or the Principality of Liechtenstein.

These twelve monarchies in Europe are (2025/2026):

1. Belgium
- 2. Denmark
3. Liechtenstein
4. Luxembourg
5. Monaco
6. Netherlands
7. Norway
8. Sweden
9. Spain
10. United Kingdom
11. Andorra (diarchy with two co-equal heads of state)
12. Vatican City (absolute, elective monarchy with the Pope)

👉 Some lists count only 10 monarchic states if Andorra and the Vatican are not considered “classic monarchies” with a monarchical dynasty. But including these special forms, the total comes to twelve monarchies in Europe.

And the kings of the earth, who have committed fornication and lived deliciously with her, shall bewail her, and lament for her, when they shall see the smoke of her burning, standing afar off for the fear of her torment, saying, Alas, alas that great city Babylon, that mighty city! for in one hour is thy judgment come. (Revelation 18:9-10)

NUUK, Greenland (AP) — U.S. President Donald Trump linked his aggressive stance on Greenland to last year's decision not to award him the Nobel Peace Prize, telling Norway's prime minister that he no longer felt "an obligation to think purely of Peace," in a text message released Monday.

Trump's message to Jonas Gahr Støre, first reported by PBS News, appears to ratchet up a standoff between Washington and its closest allies over his threats to take over Greenland, a self-governing territory of NATO member Denmark. On Saturday, Trump announced a 10% import tax starting in February on goods from eight nations that have rallied around Denmark and Greenland, including Norway.

Those countries issued a forceful rebuke.

At the tower hotel Victoria, a wooden hut outside the hotel building caught fire. There were no people inside the hut. Due to heavy smoke, the hotel was evacuated as a precaution. The fire department, which was alerted, moved from three locations and, despite the increased traffic volume, was quickly on site and was able to extinguish the fire. The rescue axis via promenade worked perfectly. As planned during the WEF annual meetings, the Swiss Army's airport fire brigade was automatically called up, as the city of Davos announced on Thursday.

A fire alarm was triggered at a tent on the roof of the convention center. The fire crews stationed directly at the convention center responded immediately. As a precautionary measure, around 15 people were expelled from the affected area. However, the suspicion of smoke development has not been confirmed and no fire source has been identified. Based on this finding, it was decided not to order an evacuation of the convention center.

Last night, our federal government dropped the bomb and effectively buried the European Union. Completely quietly. No press conference. No headlines.

The federal government sent an internal letter – with a clear message: the EU is no longer viable. This letter went to 6 other countries, and a new alliance was proposed: Fewer states. More power.

If this plan succeeds, then the EU is history & it will trigger a massive chain reaction!

Germany pushes for 'two-speed' Europe with new bloc of six leading economies

Summary

- Germany proposes 'two-speed EU' to enhance decision-making
- Klingbeil invites France, Poland, Spain, Italy, Netherlands
- Plan includes capital markets union, defence, raw materials

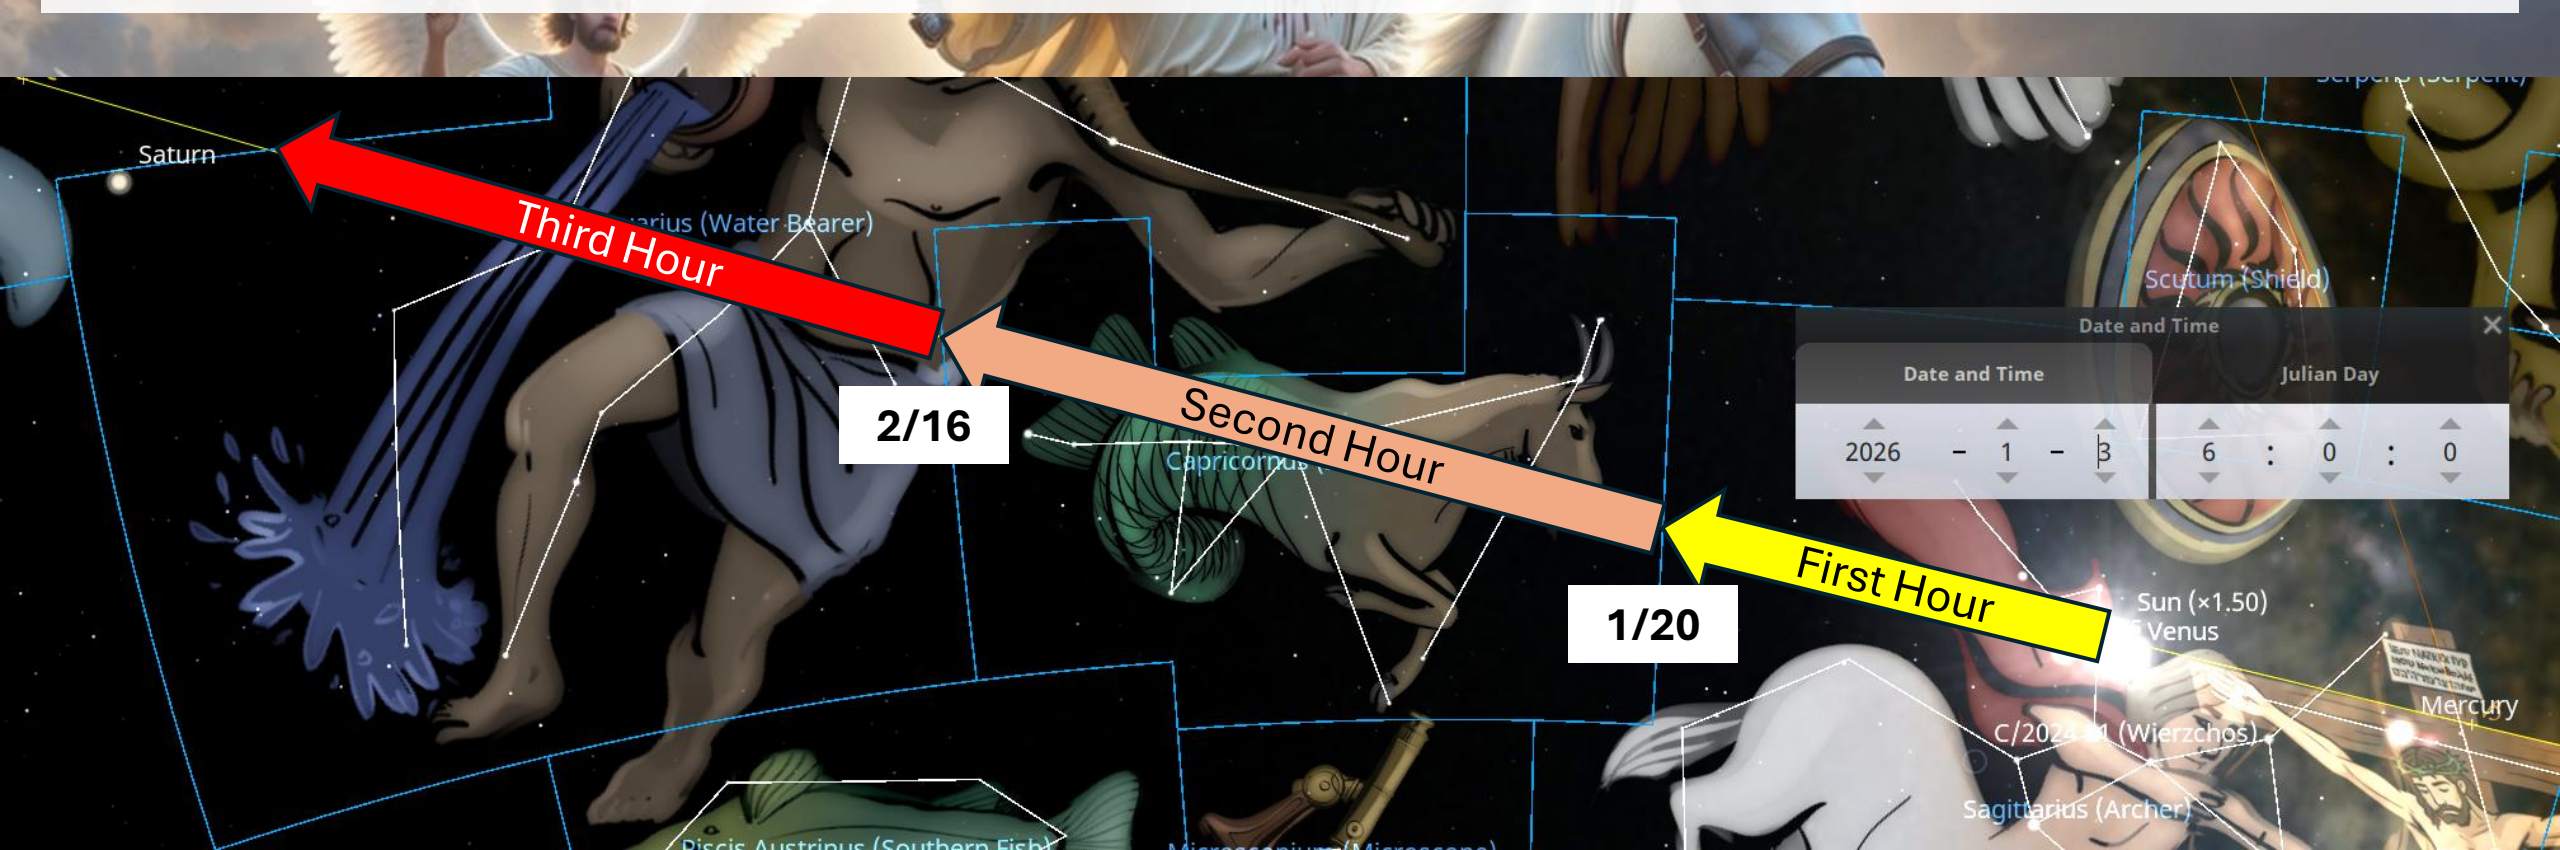

BERLIN, Jan 27 (Reuters) - Germany will push for a "two-speed" European Union to break decision-making inertia in the 27-member bloc and galvanise its economies, calling for a core group of member states to move ahead on key policies to make Europe stronger and more independent.

"Now is the time for a Europe of two speeds," German Finance Minister Lars Klingbeil said at an event hosted by Welt on Tuesday in Berlin.

And the kings of the earth, who have committed fornication and lived deliciously with her, shall bewail her, and lament for her, when they shall see the smoke of her burning, Standing afar off for the fear of her torment, saying, Alas, alas, that great city Babylon, that mighty city! for in one hour is thy judgment come. (Revelation 18:9-10)

"To survive in an increasingly unpredictable geopolitical situation, Europe must become stronger and more resilient," Klingbeil wrote in the letter to his counterparts dated Monday, adding that continuing as before could not be an option.

And the merchants of the earth shall weep and mourn over her; for no man buyeth their merchandise any more: The merchandise of gold, and silver, and precious stones, and of pearls, and fine linen, and purple, and silk, and scarlet, and all thyine wood, and all manner vessels of ivory, and all manner vessels of most precious wood, and of brass, and iron, and marble, And cinnamon, and odours, and ointments, and frankincense, and wine, and oil, and fine flour, and wheat, and beasts, and sheep, and horses, and chariots, and slaves, and souls of men. And the fruits that thy soul lusted after are departed from thee, and all things which were dainty and goodly are departed from thee, and thou shalt find them no more at all. The merchants of these things, which were made rich by her, shall stand afar off for the fear of her torment, weeping and wailing, And saying, Alas, alas, that great city, that was clothed in fine linen, and purple, and scarlet, and decked with gold, and precious stones, and pearls! For in one hour so great riches is come to nought. (Revelation 18:11-17)

Precious metals in free fall – historical sell-off ⚠️

Gold and silver recorded the most difficult trading day in their modern history.

Gold lost more than 10.5% at times, while Silver plummeted by up to 30% to around USD 76.5 per ounce – the largest percentage daily loss ever and even worse than the famous crash during the Hunt brothers' time in the 1980s.

Gold price collapses – silver loses up to 30 percent

The rally in the precious metals market has come to an abrupt end. Gold and silver are both rapidly losing value. The losses are reaching historic proportions.

Silver suffered a plunge of over 30% after a historic rally, marking its biggest crash since 1987. The triggers were an overheated market, massive liquidations, a stronger US dollar, and declining expectations of interest rate cuts. At the same time, Bitcoin is becoming an attractive alternative for capital rotation.

The drastic price drop in the silver market has caused considerable uncertainty among investors. After precious metals had enjoyed strong gains for months, there has been an abrupt shift in sentiment. In this context, Bitcoin becomes interesting, as historically, sharp corrections in precious metals have often led to new opportunities in the cryptocurrency market.

Silver experiences its biggest crash since 1987

The turbulence in global markets shows no signs of abating. In recent weeks, precious metals in particular have experienced historically strong rallies. The price of gold rose by almost 100% within a year, reaching an all-time high of $5,417.60 per troy ounce.

The rally was even more dramatic for silver, which surged by over 200%, reaching an all-time high of $121.64. However, this rally now appears to be stalling, or in the case of silver, collapsing completely. The price of silver plummeted yesterday, at one point falling by over 30%.

The collapse was further exacerbated by massive liquidation cascades and a highly leveraged market. This resulted in the biggest crash since 1987 and one of the worst days for the second most important precious metal. At one point, silver fell to just around $79, and even now, at approximately $85, the price remains under significant pressure.

What a bombshell on the commodity markets! On the evening of January 30, 2026, gold and silver experienced their most dramatic daily drop since the start of their historic record rally. The price of gold, which just a few days earlier had triumphantly climbed above the $5,500 per ounce mark, temporarily plummeted below the psychologically important $5,000 threshold. A decline of six to eight percent in a single trading day – that's something we haven't seen in a long time.

Silver is hit even harder.

While gold investors are already nervously eyeing their portfolios, silver investors need to show even stronger nerves. The white precious metal, which in recent days was still trading proudly above $110 per ounce, plummeted by a staggering 13 percent during the day. In the evening, the price hovered around the $100 mark – a level that would have been considered utopian just a few months ago.
